

Why the best systems
developer
is the ONE you never
THINK about.

Ask a hundred Business Unit Managers about what they want from their business systems, and we'll bet that ninety-five say "reliability".

What they're saying is that they'd like business systems they can ignore. Because their systems work the way they want to, when they want to.

But if it's reliability you seek, you shouldn't simply concentrate on a system you don't have to think about. You should also consider a systems developer you might not have thought of in the first place: Expert Software Services.

Not exactly the most prominent of names, we know. Still, we design, build and support business solutions for national and international organisations. Solutions that are known for their reliability. What's more, we constantly monitor the systems. Provide nationwide support. And give our customers the confidence they need.

So you see, we don't just offer you customised multi-platform client/server systems you can count on. We offer you the proper solution. Before we even think about coding, we examine all of the other factors. Then, when the time is right, we help you to build the right solution.

Expert Software Services. You may not have thought about us. But then again, isn't that what you want from a systems developer, anyway?

For more information call 03 9251 6100 or check us out online at <http://www.expert.nf>.

