

ENTERPRISE SOLUTIONS

The idea is to put IT to work. Make it simple. Keep it easy.

How do you align your IT strategy with your business goals, plus manage the increasing complexities of distributed computing? The answer is Expert Software Services, the group of software professionals more and more corporate and government organisations rely on to design business solutions, enhance support systems and implement best of breed technologies.

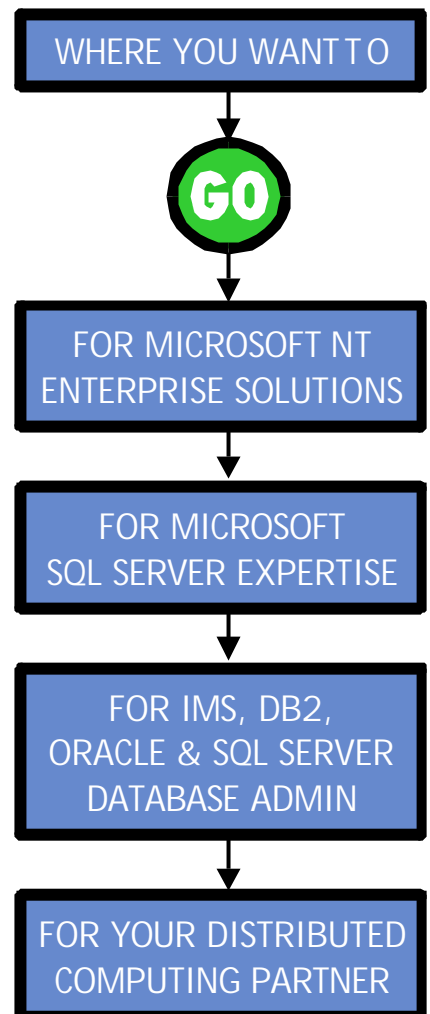

Why? Because we take a pragmatic view of your business processes and technologies, and help you use technology to your business advantage. Heavy-handed service providers may have been acceptable in the days of heavy iron. But today's distributed environment calls for a flexible, customer-centric approach. The kind of personal service you get from the distributed computing professionals at Expert Software Services.

Our qualified professionals use their business knowledge, technical savvy and real world experience to build large-volume, high-quality, mission critical, distributed computing solutions. We develop customer enterprise solutions to work cost-effectively across your mainframe (MVS), midrange (Unix or AS/400) and desktop (Windows NT) platforms.

With due consideration for your unique environment, we provide value-for-money enterprise client/server, data warehousing, Internet/intranet, electronic business and collaborative solutions. Full lifecycle services from design through implementation to support and maintenance.

We team with you using the latest Microsoft, Oracle and IBM tools to deliver tailored solutions—all focused on helping you cut costs, reduce risks and increase productivity.

So if you need to outsource your software services completely, want help with overflow, or have a rather critical emergency, please contact Expert Software Services. Find out why we were chosen as a finalist in the Telstra & Victorian Government Small Business Awards 1997, and Microsoft's international Activate the Internet Awards 1996.
